ABOUT SOUNDUP ARTS:

SoundUp Arts is a non-for-profit organisation. SoundUp Arts is a participatory music organisation which specialises in developing programmes that engage people living with dementia. We run choirs, participatory music workshops, long-term arts projects, interactive concerts and singing sessions with people living with dementia. We also develop online resources and tools, to enable carers and care-homes to facilitate high-quality interactive music with confidence.

We are registered as a community interest company to ensure that any money we raise through our work goes directly back to supporting people living with dementia. We are committed to paying our artists fair wages and to making our programmes, services and products affordable to care homes and people living with dementia in the community.

We rely on the generous donations from our community and could not continue our work without your support.

If you would like to help us continue to provide music and arts to people living with dementia please consider donating or becoming a SoundUp Star Sponsor.
